IUG earns reaccreditation with ACBSP

The International University in Geneva was granted reaccreditation by the Accreditation Council for Business Schools and Programs (ACBSP) for a period of 10 years until 2030. This reaccreditation is the result of the University's continuous improvement in teaching excellence and student outcomes. ACBSP offers accreditation of business education programs to over 1200 members of higher education on all five continents.

Double master degree with University of Plymouth and Boston University

Starting this September graduate students will have the opportunity of graduating with an additional degree from one of our partner institutions. The master students in International Relations and Diplomacy will be able to submit, towards the end of their academic year, a thesis to the University of Plymouth and graduate with a second degree from the UK. The students studying Business Administration, Business Analytics and Digital Media will be able to complete at the end their master at IUG an additional 9 months with Boston University (BU) on campus or online and obtain a 2nd degree from BU. Career Services and Company Presentations

In addition to individual counseling, students have the opportunity to attend company presentations. Alumni from organizations in the public and private sectors or international organizations are invited to make a presentation to share their insights about possible career paths in their company. Students are able to meet professionals active in their field of interest and explore the requirements, opportunities, and challenges that are linked to this field. Recently, students discussed career opportunities with a representative from McKinsey consultants. A dedicated career platform featuring internships is available to all students.
